Superlatives are a form of an adjective or adverb that compares three or more things. For example, the word short tells something about one thing, shorter tells something about two things and shortest tells something about three or more things.

Some superlatives are made by adding -est to the end of a word, like shortest or softest. Others are made by adding "most" before the word, as in most dangerous or most boring.
